Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

This two story freestanding commercial structure was originally constructed in the 1930's for its present use as an animal hospital. The second floor also continues to be used as an apartment. The building is of cement slab construction with brick facing.

"Colonial" detailing on the facade, including copper roofs above the windows, copper sconces, and multipaned windows appear to have been 1960's era additions. Original windows were of glass block construction. Also at this time an addition was made to the 43rd Ave. side of the building. This section, which enlarged the office area of the building, added an additional bay to the facade of the building. Outside dog runs were also covered during this period.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

Dr. John F. McClure, the first owner and occupant of the building, was one of the first veterinarians in Hyattsville. Prior to having the building constructed for his practice, he occupied an office in the shopping center at 4806-4816 Rhode Island Ave. Since the construction of the building, it has been in continued occupation by the practice originally begun by Dr. McClure; a number of clients have been coming to the Animal Hospital for 50 years.

The building is scheduled for demolition by Prince George's County within a few months.
